SECTION I - CONTEXT

1. Description of any state or institutional policies that may influence the application of NCSS standards. (Response limited to 4,000 characters)

Rhode Island College was established in 1854 as a Normal School and became a Comprehensive Public College in 1960. The College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges and serves approximately 9,000 undergraduate and graduate students. The school prides itself at being able to provide accessible high quality educational opportunities to traditional and non-traditional students.

The Department of History oversees the History Secondary Education program and students are required to take 36 hours of course work in the field of History along with 21 hours of social science credits in the fields of Anthropology, Geography, Political Science, and Economics. The Department of History mandates that all candidates maintain a minimum 2.75 GPA in their history courses and a separate minimum GPA of 2.75 for their social science cognate courses. All candidates are required to take the Praxis II Content Social Studies Exam and pass it with a minimum score of 157, our ideal score is 162. The State of Rhode Island defines a highly qualified social studies teacher as one who has 24 hours in history and an additional 12 hours in social studies [social science] courses. The Department of History exceeds this requirement and provides students with what is essentially a double major with a Bachelors Degree in History and Secondary Education. Candidates are prepared for initial licensure and to continue their studies at the graduate level.

The Feinstein School of Education and Human Development is accredited by both NCATE and the Rhode Island Department of Education. The Feinstein School's Conceptual Framework is aligned with both the Rhode Island Professional Teaching Standards (RIPTS) and the Interstate New Teacher Assessment and Support Consortium Standards (INTASC), therefore all of the Secondary Education courses required of History Secondary Education Candidates are aligned with both RIPTS and INTASC standards. The Conceptual Framework is based on the reflective practitioner and is anchored on Planning, Action, and Reflection. The knowledge base requires profound understandings of the subject matter, learners, teaching, and the context in which these elements interact. The knowledge base provides the candidate with the wherewithal to transform content knowledge into forms that are pedagogically powerful, yet adaptive to variations in ability, need, and background presented by the student. History Secondary Education candidates take 31 hours of professional coursework that includes the Student Teaching experience.

It is important to note that though the History Secondary Education program requires candidates to take and pass the Praxis II Content Social Studies Exam, in accordance with NCSS, the Rhode Island State Department of Education currently has no standardized content examination for those seeking initial licensure in Rhode Island. Further, though the Department of History strongly recommends that History/Social Studies educators in the field have or be working towards a master degree in history, the State of Rhode Island no longer requires its teachers to obtain a masters degree. Our candidates are well prepared to meet the requirements for initial licensure in Rhode Island and the requirements that will be demanded of them regionally in Massachusetts, Connecticut, and New York State.

2. Description of the field and clinical experiences required for the program, including the number of hours for early field experiences and the number of hours/weeks for student teaching or internships. (Response limited to 8,000 characters)

The Secondary Education program at Rhode Island College prides itself on a field based curriculum. The candidates in the History Secondary Education program at Rhode Island College complete a variety of field experiences prior to their capstone student teaching experience. The expectations for candidates increase developmentally from early field experiences to the student teaching semester. Field experiences are aligned with educational courses and students are required to take them in a progressive order. The program reflects the Conceptual Framework centered on Planning, Action, and Reflection. The field experiences combine on site and in class evaluation and includes, peer review, review by clinical instructors and the professors of record.

Prior to advancing to the professional sequence of courses students must take FNED 346: "Schooling in a Democratic Society" and pass the course with a minimum grade of B- in order to be considered for entry into the Feinstein School. As part of this experience students have a pre-professional experience spending 15 to 25 hours working with children. The primary aim of the pre-professional experience is for teacher candidates to develop an understanding of working with adolescent learners, and the application of behavioral, developmental, and motivational strategies and theories addressed in the Foundations course. Candidates must receive a positive recommendation from the supervisor.

Most candidates begin the Secondary Education Professional Sequence in their junior year. By this time they are well grounded in history/social science content completing the upper level courses required for the History Secondary Education majors and take CEP 315: "Educational Psychology" in tandem with their first course in the sequence and thus are well prepared to begin making more detailed observations and actively participating in a history/social studies classroom. Students begin their clinical experience in SED 406: "Instructional Methods, Design, and Technology" where they spend four hours observing a history/social studies classroom and are required to write reflections on their observations and make connections to classroom content. This course is followed by SED 407: "Instructional Methods, Design, and Literacy." Candidates are required to spend ten hours observing and consulting with the cooperating teacher (clinical instructor) in a history/social studies classroom and teach one reading and one writing lesson in the content field. Candidates are evaluated by the clinical instructor on site. To ensure that candidates are well grounded in the content they will teach and well prepared in the theoretical aspects of teaching they are required to pass the Praxis II Content Social Studies Exam with a minimum score of 157 and the Praxis II Principles of Learning and Teaching with a score of 167 prior to entry into SED 410: History/Social Studies Practicum. Further, all candidates must maintain a minimum 2.75 GPA in History courses and a separate 2.75 in social science cognate courses to remain in good standing in the program.

The Practicum includes two three-week field experiences, or approximately 60 -70 hours in a High School and Middle School setting. Candidates build a strong knowledge base associated with the NCSS themes. For example, candidates write lesson plans and teach lessons aligned to the NCSS standards that are observed and evaluated by both the clinical instructor and college supervisor. An historian or social scientist on the faculty is present at one of the sites on a rotating basis for the two three week periods.

The candidates are evaluated on their ability to effectively plan, teach, and reflect on content associated with the NCSS themes. In addition, candidates are prepared to create units aligned to the NCSS standards. All clinical experiences are set in history/social studies classrooms under the direction of a highly qualified social studies certified clinical instructor. All candidates are supervised by College faculty who are experienced certified social studies teachers. Overall direction and supervision of candidates is performed by faculty who are either professional historians or social scientists.

The capstone experience for all teacher candidates is SED 421: “Student Teaching” where students spend 14 weeks (490 contact hours) teaching in a social studies classroom. Candidates teach three classes (two preps) and prepare units and lessons aligned to the NCSS standards. All candidates enroll in SED 422 “History/Social Studies Seminar.” During this semester the teacher candidates apply the knowledge, skills, and dispositions they have been developing through study in the secondary education program and in the History program. It is at this point that candidates are assessed on their ability to teach history/social studies to secondary students over a sustained period of time. The candidates are evaluated on their ability to effectively plan, teach, and reflect on the content associated with the NCSS themes over 14 weeks. All cooperating classroom social studies teachers (clinical instructor) are certified and highly qualified. All candidates are supervised by college faculty who are either certified and experienced social studies teachers.

Rhode Island College is located in Providence Rhode Island and all candidates are placed in public schools located in urban, urban ring, or suburban settings. These settings are diverse in regard to: socio economic status, special needs, racial, ethnic and religious backgrounds, and new immigrant cultures. Candidate field placements are arranged through the Office of Partnerships and Placements located in the Feinstein School. All contacts with the schools, teachers, and supervisors are made through this office. The History Secondary Education program works only with highly qualified certified cooperating teachers (Clinical instructors) and preferably those with an MA History degree. Cooperating teachers and sites are selected by the Office of Partnerships and Placements based on the criteria set by the Department of History in combination with the criteria set by the Feinstein School that includes institutional commitment to the Conceptual Framework, RIDE standards, and standards set by NCATE/NCSS. To ensure high standards Cooperating teachers are now required to receive professional development training through the Office of Partnerships and Placements. Evaluation forms are sent to this office with a file, open to faculty and students, regarding each candidate’s performance while at the college.

3. Please attach files to describe a program of study that outlines the courses and experiences required for candidates to complete the program. The program of study must include course titles. (This information may be provided as an attachment from the college catalog or as a student advisement sheet.)

5. Candidate Information

Directions: Provide three years of data on candidates enrolled in the program and completing the program, beginning with the most recent academic year for which numbers have been tabulated. Report the data separately for the levels/tracks (e.g., baccalaureate, post-baccalaureate, alternate routes, master's, doctorate) being addressed in this report. Data must also be reported separately for programs offered at multiple sites. Update academic years (column 1) as appropriate for your data span. Create additional tables as necessary.

SECTION II - LIST OF ASSESSMENTS

In this section, list the 6-8 assessments that are being submitted as evidence for meeting the NCSS standards. All programs must provide a minimum of six assessments. If your state does not require a state licensure test in the content area, you must substitute an assessment that documents candidate attainment of content knowledge in #1 below. For each assessment, indicate the type or form of the assessment and when it is administered in the program.

1. Please provide following assessment information (Response limited to 250 characters each field)

Type and Number of	Name of Assessment	Type or Form of Assessment	When the Assessment Is
--------------------	--------------------	----------------------------	------------------------

Assessment	(10)	(11)	Administered (12)
Assessment #1: Licensure assessment, or other content-based assessment (required)	Praxis II Content Social Studies Exam.	Standardized Exam.	Prior to the History/Social Studies Practicum. Candidates must pass the exam with a minimum score of 157 as a requirement for entry into Practicum.
Assessment #2: Content knowledge in social studies (required)	Course grades from courses required for a BA in History Secondary Education. Grades and Scores that significantly address the NCSS themes from related courses.	Grades from the required courses for a BA in History Secondary Education are a reflection of all course work required by the professor of record. Assessments from the Segments of courses: essays, exams, portfolio assignments.	Throughout the candidates tenure in the program.
Assessment #3: Candidate ability to plan instruction (required)	Implemented Lesson Plan. Implemented Unit Plan with lessons (Found in the Exit Portfolio now called the Teacher Candidate Work Sample).	Scores that evaluate the candidates ability to plan effective NCSS Standards based instruction.	Implemented Lesson Plan: Practicum. Imlmented Unit Plan: Student Teaching.
Assessment #4: Student teaching (required)	Student Teacher Performance Evaluation Using the NCSS Standards.	Scores based on observation that evaluate the candidates ability to effectively plan, execute, and critically assess NCSS standards based instruction.	Practicum and Student Teaching.
Assessment #5: Candidate effect on student leaning (required)	Analysis of Pre and Post Assessment (Exit Portfolio) and Assessment Plan, Instructional Decision Making, and Analysis of Student Learning (Teacher Candidate Work Sample).	Portfolio Assignment designed to evaluate candidate effect on student learning over the course of a fully implemented Unit of Study.	Student Teaching.

all school levels should possess the knowledge, capabilities, and dispositions to organize and provide instruction at the appropriate school level for the study of psychology

3. PROGRAMMATIC STANDARDS FOR INITIAL LICENSURE

Information is provided in Section I, Contextual Information

3.1 Course or Courses on Teaching Social Studies. Institutions preparing social studies teachers should provide and require prospective social studies teachers to complete a course or courses dealing specifically with the nature of the social studies and with ideas, strategies, and techniques for teaching social studies at the appropriate licensure level.	6
3.2 Qualified Social Studies Faculty. Institutions preparing social studies teachers should provide faculty in the social studies and social studies education components of the program who are recognized as (a) exemplary teachers, (b) scholars in the fields of social studies and social studies education, and (c) informed about middle and secondary school classrooms and teaching.	6

SECTION IV - EVIDENCE FOR MEETING STANDARDS

DIRECTIONS: The 6-8 key assessments listed in Section II must be documented and discussed in Section IV. Taken as a whole, the assessments must demonstrate candidate mastery of the SPA standards. The key assessments should be required of all candidates. Assessments and scoring guides and data charts should be aligned with the SPA standards. This means that the concepts in the SPA standards should be apparent in the assessments and in the scoring guides to the same depth, breadth, and specificity as in the SPA standards. Data tables should also be aligned with the SPA standards. The data should be presented, in general, at the same level it is collected. For example, if a rubric collects data on 10 elements [each relating to specific SPA standard(s)], then the data chart should report the data on each of the elements rather than reporting a cumulative score..

In the description of each assessment below, the SPA has identified potential assessments that would be appropriate. Assessments have been organized into the following three areas to be aligned with the elements in NCATE's unit standard 1:

- Content knowledge (Assessments 1 and 2)
- Pedagogical and professional knowledge, skills and dispositions (Assessments 3 and 4)
- Focus on student learning (Assessment 5)

Note that in some disciplines, content knowledge may include or be inextricable from professional knowledge. If this is the case, assessments that combine content and professional knowledge may be considered "content knowledge" assessments for the purpose of this report.

For each assessment, the compiler should prepare one document that includes the following items:

- (1) A two-page narrative that includes the following:
  - a. A brief description of the assessment and its use in the program (one sentence may be sufficient);
  - b. A description of how this assessment specifically aligns with the standards it is cited for in Section III. Cite SPA standards by number, title, and/or standard wording.

- c. A brief analysis of the data findings;
- d. An interpretation of how that data provides evidence for meeting standards, indicating the specific SPA standards by number, title, and/or standard wording;
- and

(2) Assessment Documentation

- e. The assessment tool itself or a rich description of the assessment (often the directions given to candidates);
- f. The scoring guide for the assessment; and
- g. Charts that provide candidate data derived from the assessment.

The responses for e, f, and g (above) should be limited to the equivalent of five text pages each , however in some cases assessment instruments or scoring guides may go beyond five pages.

Note: As much as possible, combine all of the files for one assessment into a single file. That is, create one file for Assessment #4 that includes the two-page narrative (items a – d above), the assessment itself (item e above), the scoring guide (item f above, and the data chart (item g above). Each attachment should be no larger than 2 mb. Do not include candidate work or syllabi. There is a limit of 20 attachments for the entire report so it is crucial that you combine files as much as possible.

1. CONTENT KNOWLEDGE: Data from licensure tests of content knowledge. NCSS standards addressed in this entry should include the knowledge elements of Standards 1.1-1.10 and 2.1-2.5.<sup>13</sup> If your state does not require licensure tests in the content area, data from another assessment must be presented to document candidate attainment of content knowledge. Documentation should include total scores plus sub-scores for the state licensure test.

Provide assessment information as outlined in the directions for Section IV

See Attachments panel below.

(13) Standards 2.1-2.5 need not be addressed for Broad Field Social Studies Programs; these standards need only be addressed for programs that lead to teacher licensure in civics/government, economics, geography, history, or psychology.

2. CONTENT KNOWLEDGE: Assessment of content knowledge in the social studies or the specific social science discipline to be taught. NCSS standards addressed in this assessment could include the knowledge elements of Standards 1.1-1.10, 2.1-2.5,<sup>14</sup> 3.1, and 3.2. Examples of assessments include comprehensive examinations, course grades where the course is appropriate to a standard<sup>15</sup>, and portfolio tasks.<sup>11</sup>

(14) Standards 2.1-2.5 need not be addressed for Broad Field Social Studies Programs; these standards need only be addressed for programs that lead to teacher licensure in civics/government, economics, geography, history, or psychology.

(15) For program review purposes, there are two ways to list a portfolio as an assessment. In some programs a portfolio is considered a single assessment and scoring criteria (usually rubrics) have been developed for the contents of the portfolio as a whole. In this instance, the portfolio would be considered a single assessment. However, in many programs a portfolio is a collection of candidate work—and the artifacts included are discrete items. In this case, some of the artifacts included in the portfolio may be considered individual assessments.

3. PEDAGOGICAL AND PROFESSIONAL KNOWLEDGE, SKILLS, AND DISPOSITIONS: Assessment that demonstrates candidates can effectively plan classroom-based instruction. NCSS standards that could be addressed in this assessment include the capabilities and dispositions to organize and provide instruction identified in Standards 1.1-1.10, 2.1-2.5<sup>16</sup>, 3.1, and 3.2. This assessment does not need to address all standards. Examples of assessments include the evaluation of candidates' abilities to develop lesson or unit plans, individualized educational plans, needs assessments, or intervention plans.

Only the aspects of the assessment instrument used in student teaching or the internship specifically applicable to social studies instruction should be submitted.

SECTION V - USE OF ASSESSMENT RESULTS TO IMPROVE PROGRAM

1. Evidence must be presented in this section that assessment results have been analyzed and have been or will be used to improve candidate performance and strengthen the program. This description should not link improvements to individual assessments but, rather, it should summarize principal findings from the evidence, the faculty's interpretation of those findings, and changes made in (or planned for) the program as a result. Describe the steps program faculty has taken to use information from assessments for improvement of both candidate performance and the program, This information should be organized around (1) content knowledge, (2) professional and pedagogical knowledge, skill, and dispositions, and (3) student learning.

The six assessments that the History Secondary Education program uses to assess candidates content knowledge, professional and pedagogical knowledge, skill and dispositions, and student learning has been particularly effective in helping the Department of History to identify strengths and weaknesses of our program. We are pleased with the results yielded over the past three years, but as mentioned in Section IV believe that we can further strengthen our program to ensure that our candidates for initial licensure are competitive both regionally and at a national level. We have already initiated several actions to strengthen our program and have several new innovations that we will begin working on in the 2010-2011 academic year to further strengthen our program.

Content Knowledge

Data gathered and analyzed from the Praxis II Social Studies Content exam reveals that a minority of our students from each of the three cohorts reported on (two students from each cohort to be exact) scored below the national average in the Behavioral Sciences category; 18% Cohort I, 15% Cohort II, 12% Cohort III. We believe that this can be improved through conversations with our colleagues in Educational Psychology CEP 315 and through better candidate preparation for this part of the Praxis exam. Our scores in the categories of United States and World History are well within or exceed the national average. However, if we are to attain our goal of getting 80% of each Cohort to pass the Praxis exam with the Department of History's ideal score of 162, we need to further fortify candidate preparation. At a departmental retreat held at the end of April 2010 it was decided that we would begin work on a new strand upper level courses that would be required of all History Secondary Education majors. The new strand of courses draws inspiration from our mandatory History 266 "Globalization in Historical Perspective Since 1500" (created and instituted after our last NCSS report) and will take a global comparative perspective. The courses will further enhance candidate knowledge of both World and US History and by the very nature of the courses will underscore cross cultural perspectives, thus reinforcing some of the conceptual material required in the Behavioral Science category of the Praxis exam. In addition, the Department has decided to further strengthen the American History Survey, History 201 "Colonial to 1877" and History 202 "1877 to the Present" by moving them from three to four credit hour courses.

Mandatory close advising is now in its second year at the College and is already having an impact on our candidates' ability to successfully negotiate the many check points that have been put into place since our last NCSS report. Separate GPA requirements for History content courses and Social Science cognates has been efficacious not only for our candidates performance on the Praxis Exam, but also in the quality of NCSS standards based instruction that they plan as revealed through their lesson plans, units, and teaching performances in which candidates consistently range above average. Candidates clearly understand the importance of the gate courses History 200 "Historical Methods" and the capstone History 362 "Reading Seminar" in relation to their content preparation as they provide a logical beginning and exit in regard to their History baccalaureate. Candidates are well aware of the importance of content preparation in regard to their ability to plan and deliver NCSS standards based instruction. Following the data in preparation for this report makes clear the correlation between the coherence of our curriculum, our expectations, and results found not only on the Praxis exams, but in the quality of the standards based instruction created and demonstrated by our candidates.

Analysis of data, in this case positive, helped us to strongly advocate for an additional geographer's position in Political Science. The new faculty member is jointly appointed in secondary education and only strengthens the coherence of our program in this regard.

Professional and pedagogical knowledge, skills, and dispositions

We instituted the NCSS Student Teacher Performance Evaluation during our last review by NCATE/NCSS and as mentioned earlier have found this to be a particularly useful tool for the candidate, supervisors, and cooperating teachers. It reinforces what the candidate has already been taught in regard to lesson and unit instruction and provides the basis for an in depth conversation about the particular performance after it has concluded. The form is extremely valuable in reinforcing the need for regular feedback in regard to the NCSS themes between the candidate and the cooperating teacher. Finally, we have been pleased as to how well the form helps to reinforce the candidates understanding of how they have affected student learning in regard to the NCSS themes.

The only problem with using this form is that it requires the supervisor and cooperating teacher to fill out both the Feinstein School's observation form and the NCSS form. We are hoping that in the next academic year we will be able through conferencing between Arts and Sciences and the Feinstein School to create a form that melds the two forms together in order to simplify the process and maintains emphasis on what the candidate is doing in the classroom.

Finally, the Office of Placements and Partnerships has instituted mandatory training for all cooperating teachers. This will ensure coherence in regard to the Feinstein School's conceptual framework and further underscores the need for clear communication between the school and the field.

Student Learning

Though as evidenced by the data collected on candidate performance in regard to their professional and knowledge, skills, and dispositions that shows our candidates performing in a range that is above average, we still need to know more about our candidates impact on student learning. We believe that the newly instituted Teacher candidate work sample will help us do this, but in many ways since we only have one year of data it is too early to understand what kind of impact this new tool will have. A more thorough analysis of the data is needed accompanied by conferencing between Arts and Sciences, the Feinstein School, our teacher candidates and their cooperating teachers. We hope to begin this conversation during the following academic year.

The NCATE/NCSS process has provided our faculty with an in depth look at the History Secondary Education candidates that we prepare for initial licensure. We will continue to make changes as based on the data we collect and the feedback we receive from you. The data compiled in this report demonstrates that our program provides in depth content preparation and produces highly qualified candidates for initial licensure who are then trained to plan and deliver high quality instruction and effect student learning.
