

English 212 Adolescent Literature

Instructor: Dr. Stephen Brown

Extended Course Description: The field of Adolescent or Young Adult Literature is a dynamic one, reflecting a body of literature that is written specifically for youth. AY Literature examines the lives, challenges, and circumstances that young people encounter daily; however, most significantly, YA literature demonstrates the universality of themes to all ages and cultures. Additionally, it includes all of the elements that provide the fabric and richness of enduring works. Encompassing a range of literary genres from fantasy to contemporary realistic fiction and from biographies to poetry, the literature provides opportunities for connections between the reader and the text. It is those connections, the essential relevance of the works that give vitality to the field.

Course Purpose: This course is designed to explore literature written for and about young adults. The purpose of this course is to examine critically both traditional literary works and contemporary literature written especially for middle school and secondary students. The selection of materials and their place in the secondary curriculum will be explored. Transactional reader response theory will be presented as a significant approach to teaching literature in the schools.

Course Objectives:

The student will be able to:

- Discuss the various types of literature appropriate for use with young adults;
- Critically analyze key element and themes of the literature reflecting current literary theory;
- Demonstrate the ability to make appropriate decisions about selecting literature for use in the classroom.
- Apply reader response theory as a means to create transactions between the reader and the text;
- Demonstrate the ability to adapt meaningful literature instruction to address cultural diversity and exceptionality among students; and
- Promote strategies for developing questions to heighten understanding of literature.

Course Requirements:

1. Attendance and participation	20%
2. Major paper/presentation/discussion guide	20%
3. Be a Critic paper & Book talk	15%
4. In-class writing, exams	45%

In addition to required and optional reading for the course, you will be expected to read additional Young Adult books to complete assignments. Guidelines will be provided for papers and assignments.

All deadlines must be met. Late work will be penalized 10% a day. If you have an excused absence on the day that an assignment is due, I will expect that you email the assignment to me. Class attendance is required. Additionally, I expect that you will be actively and positively involved in class discussion and activities. Significant tardiness or leaving prior to the end of class will also constitute an absence. After any absence, students must contact me in my office before the next meeting. I am the only person who can grant an excuse for class absence. Excused absences only mean that you will have the opportunity to make up work you missed. Makeup work will be allowed only in the case of excused absences.

Any case of plagiarism will result in action consistent with English Department policy and reported to the Department chair.

Your grade will be lowered for absences; three absences (excused or unexcused) will be grounds for either removal from the class roster or automatic failure in this course.

Turn off cell phones and pagers when entering class. Phones are to be secured out of sight. Text messaging is not permitted. Use of either during class time will result in a reduction of credit for participation.

Remedial work will be required for all students who do not consistently use Standard English.
